

California Assembly Bill No. 1200 (AB1200) Cookware Disclosure:

Since our beginning, safety, innovation, and durability have been at the heart of the Tupperware® brand. As a company, we continue to be recognized for our decades of experience in creating durable, high-quality, and innovative products, and we remain committed to providing independent sales representatives and our customers with reliable and tested kitchen products. Tupperware adheres to all applicable laws regarding materials that may be used in our products. The cookware products identified here comply with applicable federal limitations governing the safe use of product parts in direct contact with food.

As of January 1, 2023, California AB1200 also requires the manufacturer of cookware to disclose on the cookware website any intentionally added chemicals on California’s designated list that may be present in the handle of the product or in any cookware surface that comes into contact with food, foodstuffs, or beverages. In compliance with such requirement, please note the presence of the identified chemicals from California’s list in the items indicated in the table. The relevant lists are the California Department of Toxic Substances (“DTSC”) Candidate Chemical list, available at <https://calsafer.dtsc.ca.gov/cms/search/?type=Chemical>.
